Cool Grey Summer Day

Author's Notes:
Just a little something. Don\'t know if I\'ll ever come back to this, but we definitely need more Donovan pieces.

Donovan sat on under the Juniper tree strumming his acoustic guitar and humming tunes. The sky was a cool grey, and a light sprinkle started to stain his clothes and fall on his olive wood guitar.

"Must I go inside already?" Thought Donovan, momentarily distracted by the cool gust of wind. The smell of rain gave him and idea, and without further ado the ideas flowed into him, and he began to hum a tune that sounded right, and think of lyrics that actually fit.

"Oh, cool grey, summer day," he hummed and strummed the guitar, a smile on his face.
